

I am writing this letter in relation to the information which has recently been circulated regarding my departure from the so called “Spaceship Institute”.

My intention with this letter is to explain the reasons of my heart-felt decision to abandon the Keshe Foundation. My motives to do so can be synthesized into three categories which are of vital importance to me.

Truthfulness / Transparency

I must admit that at the beginning my expectations in relation to the Keshe Foundation were very high. It is my understanding that a project of such a great scope which could affect a great number of human beings should be completely transparent. My experience with the Foundation did not satisfy this internal need for clarity. Rather, what I observed was a constant ambiguity and the repeated non-compliance with the promises that had created expectations, that to day have not been fulfilled.

During my stay I tried to find the responses to my questions relating to the unresolved matters which I consider important, and which the Foundation had committed to. No such answers have been found.

Liberty / Justice

I have felt that the conditions necessary to maintain my balance in life have not been respected, because of the extreme circumstances in which we had been living in relation to the supposed menaces that were floating above the foundation. We were exposed to a high level of pression at times as regards timing (it was habitual that we worked over the weekends and regularly more then 12 hours per day).

From my point of view, decisions have been taken which I consider unjust and not related to the greater good. This is directly related to the financial aspect. I do not understand why somebody who leaves behind his life to be of service of an ideal, working for the greater good, should endure an excessive financial burden which is disproportionate to the cost of materials, the venue of the laboratory and the time and efforts dedicated to teaching him. The superficially outlined teaching project of the so called “Spaceship Institute” never took place.

After three weeks, the theoretical teaching was called to an end and we started to work in the laboratory on our own. We were supposed to receive six months of theoretical teachings that would have prepared us to understand the foundations of the technology to enable us to later apply them to our particular area of knowledge and also to be able to trasmit the teachings in our own language.

We have never received this teaching. We did not even receive one page of written material independent of the books, nor any other teaching materials. Simply, we were put to work on our own and we were tutored and directed in mysterious ways by Mr. Keshe.

Even though we had committed to pay for our studies at the Foundation, those of us of the knowledge seekers who did not have the financial capacity to pay this sum, were promised by Mr. Keshe that they will look for sponsors who would pay the costs of the annual fee of € 20.000, together with the rental fees and living costs. On the first day, after we have paid the first installment of the above mentioned fee, we were told that our financing will never be a problem for us, given that the Foundation had strong economic support.

After this, we never heard of any type of news regarding any financing to sponsor our stay. All costs were paid by us.

Love

A project based on philanthropy and love should start with the innermost circle. In this aspect, I did not feel that my relationship with Mr. Keshe was a friendship or a love-based relationship. Especially after his declaration to be the “Messiah”, the lack of loving and compassionate energy which corresponds to such a vibrational level to which Mr. Keshe declares to belong, was obvious. I expected to be able to feel such a loving energy toward our group of knowledge seekers. It never was felt, not even did I feel to be appreciated for the efforts and work I had done for the Foundation.

Before I was called a knowledge seeker, I always considered myself a truth seeker. From the moment when I decided to voluntarily leave the Foundation, I tried to clarify internally what the truth is in relation to the Foundation. I am still in the process...

My position now is of an independent investigator completely detached from the Keshe Foundation and the person of Mr. Keshe.

I keep supporting any technology which I consider beneficial for the greater good of humanity, and for peace.

This latter I understand not as a lack of wars, but as an internal condition of each person, necessary for the evolution of humankind.

Hugs,
