

Mario C. was given false hope by Keshe who claimed that he could cure his ALS.

Mario was poor, so his village organized to collect money to get the Keshe ALS reactor. Keshe asked for 15,000 Euro. Impossible to pay for Mario. Finally the people of the village collected coin by coin 5,000 Euro.

Keshe agreed with the 5,000 as a first downpayment, followed by monthly rates. The 5,000 Euro were transferred to Keshe. Keshe set a date when Mario would receive the ALS reactor.

Mario waited, and waited, and waited... and finally FOUR MONTHS AFTER THE PROMISED DATE Mario received the ALS reactor.

However, the illness of Mario had aggravated so much in those 4 months of delay, that Mario died three weeks after receiving the ALS reactor.

Now, was Mario a Keshe victim or not? You be the judge.

Let's pray for the soul of Mario C. from the city of Ituzaingo in Argentina.

Mario was a fine gentle person, a Facebook friend of mine. His family kept his page open to honour him.

Now Keshe's wife Caroline tries to get the ALS reactor back. Why? To remove evidence?

Keshe claims - even today - to have a solution for any illness, so he keeps giving false hope.
